To: Hiring Team, Revolut

Role: New Business Account Executive (Iberia Market)

Dear Hiring Team,

As a highly data-oriented outbound sales professional based in Spain, I have closely followed Revolut's lightning-fast growth and its mission to redefine how businesses manage their money. With direct experience owning the entire B2B sales cycle—from prospecting to closing—and full fluency in both Spanish and English, I am incredibly excited to apply for the New Business Account Executive role for the Iberia market.

Over the past year, I have built and managed my own B2B commercial pipeline from scratch, acquiring clients for digital agency services. Using tools like Apollo.io, Instantly.ai, and LinkedIn Sales Navigator, I developed a robust lead-sourcing strategy that consistently generates 5-10 qualified meetings a week. While my outreach relies heavily on impeccable written communication and automated digital sequencing (Email and LinkedIn) to efficiently scale my pipeline, I am deeply comfortable getting on the phone to conduct discovery, understand complex customer needs, and drive deals through the funnel to closed-won.

I thrive on autonomy and taking full ownership of my CRM administration (HubSpot) to balance my time between prospecting and closing. My ongoing studies in Multimedia Engineering have given me a sharp, analytical mindset and a strong technical aptitude, allowing me to quickly become a product expert on complex software solutions like Revolut Business.

I am highly motivated to bring my entrepreneurial mindset and relentless determination to Revolut's high-performing sales culture in Spain. I would welcome the opportunity to discuss how my proactive, tech-forward approach to outbound sales can help scale the Iberia market.

Sincerely,

Daniil Kotelevets
